HONORARY DEGREES

ROBERT HENRY STROTZ—DOCTOR OF HUMANE LETTERS

Economist, educator. Ph.D. University of Chicago, 1951. Northwestern University's thirteenth president, from 1970 to 1985, and now University chancellor, Strotz joined the economics faculty in 1947 and became dean of the College of Arts and Sciences in 1966. As president, he was responsible for much of the University's growth into one of the nation's leading teaching and research universities. Member and officer of numerous educational, professional, and civic organizations, he is vice chairman of the National Merit Scholarship Corporation, past chairman of the board of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, a former director of the McGaw Medical Center, a trustee of the Field Museum of Natural History, and a former trustee of the Museum of Science and Industry. In addition to having served as editor of Econometrica and other economics journals, he has published widely on welfare economics, statistical estimation, and consumer behavior.

GEORGE PRATT SHULTZ—DOCTOR OF LAWS

Public official, corporate executive, educator. Ph.D. Massachusetts Institute of Technology, 1949. When appointed secretary of state in 1982, Shultz returned to Washington from the presidency of the Bechtel Group, Inc., a San Francisco-based engineering company. As an adviser to and member of both Republican and Democratic administrations, he had previously held a number of important positions in the federal government, including those of secretary of labor, from 1969 to 1970; director of the Office of Management and Budget, from 1970 to 1972; and secretary of the treasury, from 1972 to 1974. Following receipt of his Ph.D., Shultz taught industrial relations at M.I.T. and at the University of Chicago Graduate School of Business, where he was named dean in 1962. A specialist in labor relations, he is coauthor of several books, including The Dynamics of a Labor Market (1951), Management Organization and the Computer (1960), and Strategies for the Displaced Worker (1966).

WALPOLA SRI RAHULA—DOCTOR OF SACRED THEOLOGY

Scholar, educator. Ph.D. University of London, 1950. An ordained Buddhist monk, Rahula was actively engaged in the struggle for independence from British rule of his native Ceylon (now Sri Lanka). His book The Heritage of the Bhikkhu was written to remind his fellow monks of the Buddhist monk's public responsibility, before colonial conquest; it remains a standard study of Buddhist monasticism. Among his other books is What the Buddha Taught, which has been translated into five languages. Attached to the Sorbonne in Paris for many years, Rahula returned to Sri Lanka in 1966 to head the oldest continuing institution of higher learning in that nation, Vidyodaya University. He also headed the National Council on Higher Education. He is currently chancellor of the Kelaniya University of Sri Lanka. Since the Sri Lanka disturbances of 1983, he has worked as an adviser on interracial relations to the country's president and has chaired a national committee on racial and religious conciliation.

After holding several increasingly responsible positions with the AT&T Long Lines Department, he joined Illinois Bell in 1963 and was elected president in 1969. He was elected vice chairman and chief financial officer and a director of AT&T in 1976; president in 1977; and chairman of the board in 1979. ### CARLO RUBBIA—DOCTOR OF SCIENCE

Physicist. Ph.D. University of Pisa, 1958. Professor of physics at Harvard University and researcher at the European Laboratory for Particle Physics (CERN) near Geneva, Switzerland, Rubbia led a team of more than 100 physicists from 11 universities and laboratories in experiments that led to the detection of three subatomic particles—two W particles (one electrically positive and one negative) and the neutral Z particle. He supervised the construction of a large and sophisticated detector that, when used with the CERN accelerator capable of generating the world's highest energies, made possible the discovery of the subatomic particles. Regarded as a crucial step toward the development of a single theory to account for all natural forces, the discovery confirmed predictions based on a theory that unifies two of the basic forces of nature: the electromagnetic force and the weak force. For his work, Rubbia was awarded the 1984 Nobel Prize in Physics.

Presented by Bruno Gobbi, Professor of Physics and Astronomy, College of Arts and Sciences

STANTON RUFUS COOK—DOCTOR OF HUMANE LETTERS

A member of the National Academy of Engineering and a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, Drucker has also been a Fulbright Scholar, a Guggenheim fellow, and a NATO Senior Science Fellow. He is past president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the American Society for Engineering Education, and the International Union for Theoretical and Applied Mechanics.

He has been recognized for his seminal studies of columnar organization of the cerebral cortex and for his pioneering in quantitative studies of the somatosensory system posterior parietal cortex, his work serving as a model for others attempting to explain behavior in terms of the activity of ensembles of neurons in the central nervous system. Editor of the textbook Medical Physiology and former chief editor of the Journal of Neurophysiology, Mountcastle has received numerous awards, including the Lashley Prize from the American Philosophical Society and the Gerard Prize from the Society for Neuroscience.
